Global Education Initiative Grants

The International Center for Not-for-Profit Law (ICNL) is pleased to announce a Global Education Initiative to support the study of civil society law at universities and schools of law in eligible developing countries worldwide. The Global Education Initiative will provide grants to support the integration of civil society law courses into the curricula of eligible universities and educational institutions. Grants will be in the amount of up to, but not exceeding $15,000.

ICNL is an international not-for-profit organization that promotes an enabling environment for civil society, philanthropy, and public participation worldwide. ICNL has enhanced the capacity of thousands of partners through ongoing mentoring, training programs, fellowships and university partnerships. Through past educational initiatives, ICNL has supported the integration of civil society law courses into the curriculum of universities in Africa, the Americas, and in Europe.

ICNL is inviting written expressions of interest from eligible applicants who would like to create, refine or expand course material (or syllabus/syllabi or course modules) addressing the legal framework for civil society, civic space and public participation, as well as civic freedoms and to integrate this material into the existing university curriculum. If successful, ICNL will support the candidate in the preparation of syllabi and course materials. In exchange, the university agrees to integrate the course into its curriculum and to cover on-going teaching costs.

The types of activities that ICNL can support include (but are not limited to):

- The design of a course, module or full curriculum relating to civil society law, including the plan for integration of this into the university structure;
- The preparation of a course syllabus or syllabi;

This information material is wholly financed by the Government of Sweden. The Government of Sweden does not necessarily share any opinions here within expressed. The author bears the sole responsibility for the content.

- The preparation of course materials (incl. lesson plans, lectures, discussion questions, activities, etc.);
- The translation of sample syllabi and/or course materials;
- Training for academics/professors on civil society law.

This list is merely illustrative and ICNL strongly encourages applicants with innovative ideas and approaches not described above to apply.

Application Instructions

To apply for a grant, applicants must submit the following items in English:

- Application coversheet;
- Proposal (no more than five pages);
- Resume, curriculum vitae (CV), or other statement of work history and education (no more than 3 pages) (for individual applicants only); and
- Letter of support from the educational institution or institutions where the initiative will take place.

Content of Proposal

In five pages or less, please describe your proposal for an education initiative on civil society law. The education initiative should relate to creating a course curriculum or module on civil society law to be taught in an educational institution in eligible developing countries. The proposal should address the following topics:

- Why is this relevant to students in your specific location? Briefly describe the need for an educational initiative to promote civil society law in your particular country and/or region.
- Applicant's experience in teaching issues relating to the legal framework for civil society;
- The institution/institutions where the proposed course will be taught, the institution's demonstrated support for this proposal, the proposed target group/student body, and the anticipated interest of this group in the suggested course;
- Existing civil society law educational initiatives within the host institution or at other institutions in the country where the initiative will take place. Where applicable, the plan for ensuring complementarity between the proposed educational initiative and existing initiatives.

- An overview of the proposed educational initiative, including, where appropriate, a description of proposed course materials, texts, syllabi and lessons plans;
- A proposed activity plan with specific goals and a timeline for the development of the curriculum, recognizing that grant activities must be completed no later than December 31, 2018;
- Proposed tools for assessment of student learning outcomes, student engagement, and quality of course materials, as well as strategies for adapting course material based on assessment results.
- The sustainability of the proposed course, i.e. plans to maintain the course as a permanent component of the institution's curriculum beyond the Global Education Initiative grant support period.
- What is the potential for scaling the project? Describe how your proposed activities might be replicated in other universities or learning facilities in your country and/or region thereby extending the impact of the project.

Please also attach a line-item budget (which does not count toward the 5-page limit for the proposal).

Eligibility Requirements

The Global Education Initiative is open to any law professors, academics, and/or institutions located in countries currently listed on the DAC List of ODA recipient countries.

Selection Criteria

Applications will be evaluated based on the following factors:

- Compliance with eligibility requirements and application procedures;
- Demonstrated commitment of applicant to promoting the study of civil society law;
- Quality of proposed project, including the innovativeness of the proposal, the proposed methodology/design, feasibility of the project (e.g. activities are targeted to achieve stated results, and anticipated results are realistic and attainable);
- Likelihood that the proposed project will advance the study of civil society law in the country and/or region;

- Sustainability of the proposed project beyond the grant period;
- Proposed budget and apparent value for money; and
- Inclusion of reasonable indicators to measure project success.
