EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

The proposed Peaceful Assembly Act 2011 (“the proposed Act”) relates to the right to assemble peaceably and without arms, and seeks to provide restrictions deemed necessary or expedient relating to such right in the interest of the security of the Federation or any part thereof or public order, including the protection of the rights and freedoms of other persons, and to provide for related matters. The proposed Act is one of the efforts initiated by the Government to undertake the transformation of the existing legal framework in relation to the constitutional rights of citizens to assemble.

PART I

2. Part I of the proposed Act contains preliminary matters.

Clause 1 contains the short title and the provisions on commencement and the non-application of the proposed Act. The short title reflects the scheme of the proposed Act which is to affirm the right to assemble peaceably and without arms.

Clause 2 contains the objects of the proposed Act. This clause clarifies the overall purpose of the proposed Act that is to allow citizens to organize assemblies and participate in assemblies peaceably and without arms subject only to restrictions deemed necessary or expedient in the interest of the security of the Federation or any part thereof or public order, including the protection of the rights and freedoms of other persons. The expression “rights and freedoms of other persons” refers to the right to peaceful enjoyment of one’s possession, the right to freedom of movement, the right to enjoy the natural environment and the right to carry on business.

Clause 3 contains the definitions of the words and expressions used in the proposed Act. Amongst the definitions provided are “assembly” which includes static and moving assembly, “organizer”, “participants” and “persons who have interests”.

PART II

3. Part II of the proposed Act deals with the right to organize or participate in an assembly.

Clause 4 makes it clear that the right to organize or participate in an assembly peaceably and without arms does not extend to a non-citizen, an assembly held at any prohibited places and within fifty metres from the limit of the prohibited places and a street protest. The clause also provides that a person below the age of twenty-one years cannot be an organizer and that a child below the age of fifteen years cannot participate in an assembly other than an assembly specified in the Second Schedule. Any person who contravenes this clause commits an offence.

Clause 5 deals with the rights of a person who has interests. A person who has interests shall have the right to be informed of the details of an assembly so as to allow him to raise his concerns or objections to the assembly.

PART III

4. Part III deals with the responsibilities of organizers, participants and police.

Clause 6 sets out the responsibilities of an organizer. An organizer shall ensure that the assembly is in compliance with the proposed Act and any other written law. The responsibilities include the duty to ensure that the organization and conduct of the assembly is not in contravention of the proposed Act or any order issued under the proposed Act or any other written law, that he or any other person at the assembly does not do any act or make any statement which has a tendency to promote feelings of ill-will, discontent or hostility amongst the public at large or do anything which will disturb public tranquility, that he or any other person at the assembly does not commit any offence under any written law and that the assembly is in accordance with the notification given and any restrictions and conditions which may be imposed, will not endanger health or cause damage to property and the environment and will not cause any significant inconvenience to the public at large. The organizer also has a responsibility to co-operate with the public authorities, to clean up the place of assembly or bear the clean-up cost, and in the case of simultaneous assemblies or counter assemblies, to ensure that the organization of the assemblies are not intended to specifically prevent the other assembly from taking place or interfere with the organization of such assembly.

Clause 7 sets out the responsibilities of the participants of an assembly. A participant shall refrain from disrupting or preventing any assembly, from behaving offensively or abusively towards any person or causing damage to property, doing any act or making any statement which has a tendency to promote feelings of ill-will, discontent or hostility amongst the public at large or doing anything which will disturb public tranquility, committing any offence under any written law and causing damage to property. A participant shall adhere to the orders given by the police, organizer or any person appointed by the organizer to be in charge of the orderly conduct of the assembly.

Clause 8 sets out the responsibilities of the police. A police officer may take such measures as he deems necessary to ensure the orderly conduct of an assembly in accordance with this Act and any other written law.

Part IV

5. Part IV deals with requirements on organizing an assembly.

Clause 9 requires the organizer to give a notification of the assembly to the Officer in Charge of the Police District in which the assembly is to be held. An organizer must give the Officer in Charge of the Police District a notification within thirty days before the date of the assembly. The requirement for notification is not applicable to an assembly held at a designated place of assembly and any other assemblies as specified in the Third Schedule. Under this clause, an organizer of a religious assembly or a funeral procession may inform the Officer in Charge of the Police District in which the assembly or procession is to be held and may, if assistance is needed to maintain traffic or crowd control, request for such assistance.

Clause 10 sets out the requirement regarding notification of assembly, including the details to be furnished regarding the intended assembly.

Clause 11 requires an organizer of an assembly, other than a religious assembly or a funeral procession or an assembly held at a designated place of assembly, to obtain the consent of the owner or occupier of the place of assembly for it to be used for the purpose of the assembly.

Clause 12 sets out the duties of the Officer in Charge of the Police District upon receiving a notification of assembly. The Officer in Charge of the Police District is required to inform persons who have interests within forty-eight hours by causing the details of the assembly to be posted conspicuously at various locations at the place of assembly or to use any other reasonable means suitable or necessary so as to make the information available to such persons. A person who has interests may, in writing, inform his concerns or objections to the assembly within five days of being informed. The Officer in Charge of the Police District shall take into account the concerns or objections received for the purpose of imposing restrictions and conditions under clause 15.

Clause 13 empowers the Officer in Charge of the Police District, at any time after receiving the notification, to call the organizer for a meeting to advise the organizer on the assembly if the circumstances warrant it.

Clause 14 requires the Officer in Charge of the Police District to respond to a notification of assembly within twelve days of the receipt of the notification. The response must include any restrictions and conditions to be imposed, if any. If the Officer in Charge of the Police District does not respond to the notification in accordance with this clause, the assembly shall proceed as proposed in the notification.

Clause 15 sets out the restrictions and conditions that may be imposed by the Officer in Charge of the Police District for the purpose of security or public order, including the protection of the rights and freedoms of other persons.

The restrictions and conditions imposed under this clause may, among others, relate to the date, time and duration of assembly, the place of assembly, the manner of the assembly, the conduct of participants during the assembly, the payment of clean-up costs arising out of the holding of the assembly, the concerns and objections of persons who have interests or any other matters the Officer in Charge of the Police District deems necessary or expedient in relation to the assembly. Any person who contravenes the restrictions and conditions imposed commits an offence.

Clause 16 provides for the right of appeal on the restrictions and conditions imposed. The organizer aggrieved by the imposition of restrictions and conditions may, within four days of being informed of the restrictions and conditions, appeal to the Minister who shall give his decision within six days from the day the appeal was received by him.

Clause 17 deals with simultaneous assemblies. If the Officer in Charge of a Police District receives notifications for two or more assemblies to be organized, and the assemblies are proposed to be held at the same time, date and place, the assemblies may, subject to restrictions and conditions imposed under clause 15, be held simultaneously. If, in the opinion of the Officer in Charge of the Police District, that the assemblies cannot be held simultaneously, the organizer who first submitted the notification to hold the assembly in the place of assembly shall be given priority, unless the place of assembly is traditionally or contractually to be used for the other assembly. In the case of notifications of assembly received at the same time, the Officer in Charge of the Police District shall give preference to the organizer whose name is extracted in a draw.

Clause 18 deals with counter assembly. If the Officer in Charge of a Police District receives a notification of a counter assembly and it is evident that the organization of the counter assembly will cause conflict between the participants of the assemblies, the Officer in Charge of the Police District shall give an alternative for the counter assembly to be organized at another time, date or place.

Clause 19 provides for presumption as to the organizer of an assembly held at a designated place of assembly, an assembly specified in Third Schedule, an assembly of which no notification was given as required, or an assembly of which the identity of the organizer stated in the required notification is false. Any person who initiates, leads, promotes, sponsors, holds or supervises the assembly, or invites or recruits participants or speakers for the assembly, shall be deemed to be the organizer of the assembly.

PART V

6. Part V deals with provisions on enforcement.

Clause 20 empowers a police officer to arrest, without warrant, any organizer or participant who refuses or fails to comply with any restrictions and conditions under clause 15, any organizer or participant who has in his possession any arms, or any organizer or participant who recruits or brings a child, during the assembly. This power is to be exercised only after the police officer has taken necessary measures to ensure voluntary compliance by the organizer or participant.
